

GENERAL INFORMATION

Instructor: Thomas Weston
E-Mail: tweston@mail.sdsu.edu
Web page: <http://tomweston.net>
Office: AL-442      Phone: 619-594-6218

SUBJECT OF COURSE:

Philosophy of Values. The course will concentrate on morality and social justice.

OBJECTIVES OF COURSE:

(1) To challenge the student to think about what kind of life to live, and what kind of society to live it in. In particular we will discuss issues about social inequality (poverty and wealth, race and gender inequality) and about social conflict and harmony (war and peace, protest and rebellion). By the end of the course you should be more skilled and confident in thinking about such issues and discussing them.

(2) To introduce the student to philosophical reasoning. This means that you should learn how philosophers reason and criticize the reasoning of others, and develop some skill in doing these things yourself.

(3) To present some of the major alternative views on morality and political theory. This means that you will learn some of the most influential ideas and theories about what makes right actions right, and what political institutions should exist. You will learn how to apply these theories to practical situations and issues.

MATERIAL COVERED:

All our readings are contained the packet of Xeroxed materials. These materials concern major moral or political theories, or applications of these theories to concrete examples from American history or contemporary affairs.

Examples will concentrate on questions of the moral justification of inequalities within a single country, or those concerning domination or exploitation of one country by another, as well as issues of peace and war. A schedule of assignments will be available during the second week of class.

The views we study are not all equally valid. Some are definitely wrong, and some may be positively evil. We do not study a point of view only because it might be true, but because it is important to understand it.

Controversy and debate are normal and necessary in philosophy, so don't hesitate to express your disagreements with the written texts, the instructor or other students.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS: (all must be completed for a passing grade)

- 1) Midterm Exams: Two one-hour exams in essay form will be given. The first will be given approximately in the 7th week. Each exam counts 30%.
- 2) Final Examination: Given at regularly scheduled time, counts 35%.
- 3) Short quizzes: 5 minute quizzes on assigned reading, 10 per term, counts 5%. Cannot be made up.
- 4) Regular attendance and occasional class participation.

Accommodation for Disabilities

If you are a student with a disability and believe you will need accommodations for this class, it is your responsibility to contact Student Disability Services at \(619\) 594-6473. To avoid any delay in the receipt of your accommodations, you should contact Student Disability Services as soon as possible. Please note that accommodations are not retroactive, and that the instructor cannot provide accommodations based upon disability until he has received an accommodation letter from Student Disability Services. Your cooperation is appreciated.